

Celebrating Women in Photography Today

IFE NKILI

Chin We

IFE NKILI is a phrase from the Igbo tribe in Nigeria which means “come and see, come and see beauty”.

IFE NKILI is a series of conceptual portraits that explores themes of identity, culture, representation, heritage and tribe. A capture of people in Northern, South Western and South Eastern Nigeria. The series represents the 3 major tribes in Nigeria - Igbo, Hausa and Yoruba.

Chin We is a Visual/Photo Artist and Cultural Curator based in London. She is fascinated by portraiture, capturing people's essence and visual storytelling. Her work explores themes of identity, culture, representation, heritage and the African diaspora. Her photography also empowers and celebrates contemporary African culture and the African identity. Her work has been published on CNN and several other publications. She was featured on CNN as one of the leading African heroine women photographers to follow, nominated for the RPS 100 heroines by the Royal Photographic Society (UK) and won an honourable mention award in the People-Portrait Category in International Photography Awards (IPA).

MORE INFO

Website: www.chinwe.me
Instagram: instagram.com/chinwe.me
Email: hello.chinwe@gmail.com