

Celebrating Women in Photography Today

UNTITLED

Sophie Ellen

This project focuses around beauty and the representation of this within the media. I have drawn inspiration from my personal on-going struggles with my own appearance and body image, alongside taking a stance to diversify my portfolio and the work that I am contributing to the media. Taking these portraits, I have stripped everything back to just the model and I (no make-up artist, styling etc.) which has been a refreshing experience, alongside a healing process for both myself and the subject.

An on-going project, this series will be developed and extended. Keep an eye out on my Instagram for news regarding the culmination of this.

If you have an interesting look and a story to tell, and are interested in modelling, please contact me via email.

Sophie Ellen is a fashion and portrait photographer, published internationally. Her work has graced the covers of magazines; Bricks, BLK CLR and Mote Paper. Other editorial spreads include Liike Magazine and Satellite Journal. Recently, her work for 209 Women was exhibited in the Houses of Parliament and Open Eye Gallery; alongside work included in a Shutter Hub exhibition at Cambridge University. Commercial clients have included Fabletics, Tuğcan Dökmen and Olympus UK. Alongside commercial work, Sophie works on personal projects fusing her fashion aesthetic and personal stories.
